We present a deeper look at “HyperMotion Technology”, featuring images of real-world players and their bioengineered animations in-game. Picking up in the heart of the action in the box, showcasing FUT Champions Cup returns and a new set of 8 new teams, including newcomers Chelsea FC and Paris Saint-Germain FC. "The new FUT Champions Cup mode is the biggest new feature in FIFA 22," says Philipp Schöller, Creative Director at EA Sports. "We are introducing a redesigned online experience, bringing a whole new set of problems, and we're asking players to discover and unlock the new gameplay features and the previous FUT Champions mode through the challenges and modes available." New Player Bioengineering Workflow: The team's goal with player bioengineering work was to really understand the type of movements and behaviors that made players distinctive, top-level professionals. Based on the motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits, the team was able to deconstruct how their bodies moved over thousands of frames of data. Within that data, the team was able to identify their unique body characteristics that all players share but that every player has a unique and different 'DNA' to work with. From this, the team were able to take the motion capture data and compare it to the real-life movement of multiple players to identify the unique characteristics of each player. A new algorithm is then used to determine how to increase a player's prototypical characteristics to replicate the real-life performance. "We're not just looking at player DNA," says Tim Andres, Bio-Engineer, EA Sports. "We're looking at an entirely new set of bioengineered animations that give us thousands of new animations. So, when we use that DNA data, we're not using the DNA that we have. We're using the DNA of the real-life player, and that's one of the most exciting aspects of working with that data, because it means we can create the player's DNA, their unique moves, and then we replicate that, so when you play the game, you can see the effects of this player's specific DNA, and we're looking at the data to find that in a player and see how

The story begins back in the past when FIFA blew into the gaming world in a big way, and remained a guilty pleasure for the sports community in the process. Over the past 10 years, FIFA has evolved, becoming a deeper experience that encourages player interaction and puts more emphasis on realistic football. This year, FIFA will return as the game that every athlete, sports fan and casual gamer loves, with our best gaming engine ever and the biggest features. In FIFA 18, we knew that we couldn't innovate into FIFA like we do with any other franchise and still deliver a FIFA experience the fans would love. So we started from scratch, with the goal of delivering an all-new FIFA experience that combined the best from other sports games with innovative gameplay innovations to create a truly unique football game.
