Q: How to restore or copy data to specific partition? I have an existing Ubuntu partition but I don't want to actually use that partition anymore and copy the data to another partition. What's the easiest way to do that? A: You can use the Partition Manager GUI tool to view the partitions available, then you can select the partition where you want to put the data, and then tell it to resize the partition and copy the data. To have it be a permanent solution, you might want to make the partition bootable so that it will be recognized during the next boot. If you need to know which partition you want to copy to, you can use the Disks tool (`sudo apt-get install gparted`) to open the partition table and see what it says about the partitions. That might help you find out which one you want to make into a copy.

A strategic investor in oil and gas, chemical and petrochemical, agriculture, refining and forestry, Koch Industries is the largest privately owned company in the United States. The company is well known for its business reach and for its clean-air and clean-water pollution prevention efforts. Koch products are sold in all 50 U.S. states and in 100 countries and territories. Koch Industries is proud to join the American Petroleum Institute as an affiliate member. The entire Koch family joins EPA in expressing its disappointment in what has transpired in the U.S. Congress with regard to the reauthorization of the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA). We are extremely frustrated and saddened that our government has failed to act to protect and enhance the environment, as it has for many years. Our responsibility to the health, safety and well-being of our stakeholders, including our employees, shareholders and the public is paramount. The Koch family has opposed the passage of TSCA over the past 20 years and continues to work closely with members of Congress to address the need for revisions. We are very proud to have the opportunity to serve our communities and our stakeholders in the private sector through our other energy-focused subsidiaries.

Company History The Koch family has a long history with Koch Industries. Charles Koch's father, Fred Koch, started Koch and Company with his brothers in 1940, but Charles never worked in Koch Industries. Charles Koch became a major shareholder, eventually taking over the entire company in 1970. In the process, Charles and his brother David Koch made significant contributions to Koch Industries. For example, in the early 1980s, they acquired interests in the international oil field services and chemicals and manufacturing businesses. As a result, Koch Industries became the world's largest privately owned company by revenues. Most recently, the Koch brothers built Koch Liquified Petroleum GmbH into a leading supplier of oil products to customers around the world, and Koch Midstream Partners LLC became the leading U.S. operator of pipelines. Businesses Koch Industries' businesses are diverse and include oil and gas, petrochemical, agriculture, refining and forestry, chemical, and other industries, as well as the processing and retailing of paper products.
